Co-operative Marketing Of Tobacco.

The tobacco business in Kentucky seems to be shot to pieces from the low prices realized from the 1920 crop. The production of tobacco is one of the very greatest interests in our State. Thousands of our people depend upon tobacco for a living, and many more thousands depend upon it for any surplus money they may earn. It is not only a big thing for the grower, but it is a big thing for the banks and the commercial interests in the State.

While the tobacco growers in 1921 made no money as a whole, the tobacco manufacturing concerns that bought the crop made enormous dividends.

The profits in tobacco are not fairly divided between the grower and the manufacturer, as the latter plays safe through co-operations and is thus able to hog the bulk of the profit.

Co-operative marketing of tobacco, based on the principles which have been so successful in California as applied to fruits and other products, seems to present the only hope to tobacco growers. If the California co-operative marketing of prunes can so increase the demand for prunes as to more than double the production, and at the same time double the price, we can see no reason why the same thing cannot be accomplished with tobacco, operating in the same way. At present the tobacco grower gets only eight per cent of the price paid by the consumer of the weed, when he should get at least fifty per cent.

It will continue this way until the growers, by co-operative marketing, have something to say as to the price of his commodity.

The plan, as outlined by Mr. Sapiro, the California expert, for the organization of the Burley tobacco growers, seems to us both feasible and practical. As he stated in his speech here Monday, even if the plan fails, the growers are no worse off. In other words, the growers take no risk by joining together in an association to control, in a great measure, their product.

The Burley Association will not be organized unless seventy-five per cent of the growers go into it, and they must go into it for five years to insure a reasonable control of the market. The organization is a self protective one and seeks to prevent the product of the toil, labor and expense of the grower being placed at the mercy of a few buyers, who act co-operative.

The warehouse will be taken over and used to store and grade the tobacco, and the owner of warehouse receipts can borrow money from the banks, if he needs it at any time, until his crop is sold.

It cuts out millions of dollars of expense which the buyer now has in securing the crop, so that he can afford to add this amount to the cost price of the weed. On the other hand, it cuts out the big expense of operating the warehouse, which the grower also has to pay.

The plan has met with the hearty and unanimous endorsement of the bankers all over the State, and we have yet to find one of these financiers who can discover a single fault with the plan.

It will not be an experiment for tobacco growers, because the experiment has been made in California, and our people are in a position to avoid the mistakes which were made in the early stages in California, and start out with a plan that is workable, because it has been worked; feasible, because it has been demonstrated, and profitable, because it has proved profitable in prunes, oranges, nuts and raisins. It will be equally profitable in tobacco.

Hardin county growers can get from the Courier Journal on application, the full plan of the proposed association, as outlined in a complete address by Mr. Sapiro.—Elizabeth-town News.

POTATOES ASSUMING THEIR FORMER RANK

Have Receded From Temporary State as Delicacy.

Crop of 1920 Was Largest in History of Country, Amounting to 430,468,000 Bushels—Steady Drop is Noted in Prices.

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)

With the continuing drop in price, potatoes have receded from their temporary status of delicacy, and are assuming their old rank as a great American staple food. This is to be assumed from figures lately compiled by the bureau of crop estimates, United States Department of Agriculture, which shows that between harvest time and January 1, this year, 285,172,000 bushels of tubers were moved off from the farms on their way to the table. This is 58,735,000 bushels more than left the farms in the corresponding period a year ago or a half bushel additional for every man, woman and child in the United States.

Good Potatoes of Uniform Size.

The potato crop of 1920 was the largest in the history of the country, amounting to 430,468,000 bushels, and of these only 145,280,000 bushels were estimated as remaining in the hands of growers and dealers January 1. In 1919 the crop was 255,773,000 bushels, and the amount in the hands of growers and dealers January 1, 1920, was estimated at 127,000,000 bushels.

When the potato crop has been large, under normal conditions, the stocks of January 1 usually have been large, and in years of usual production, before 1918, the stocks of January 1 commonly were about one-half of the crop in the total of the principal northern potato-producing states. In the case of the 1920 crop, on the contrary, the stocks on the farm January 1 amounted to only one-third of the crop, and were smaller than the average of the three preceding years, when the production was much less.

Statisticians of the department believe the greater consumption of potatoes has been encouraged by the drop in prices. For the entire country the average price received by growers was $3.00 a bushel August 1; $1.85, September 1; $1.35, October 1; $1.15, November 1; $1.15 December 1, and $1.05 January 1.

FINDING GRADE OF POTATOES

Too Much Dependence Should Not Be Placed on Size Alone—Knobs Deduct From Value.

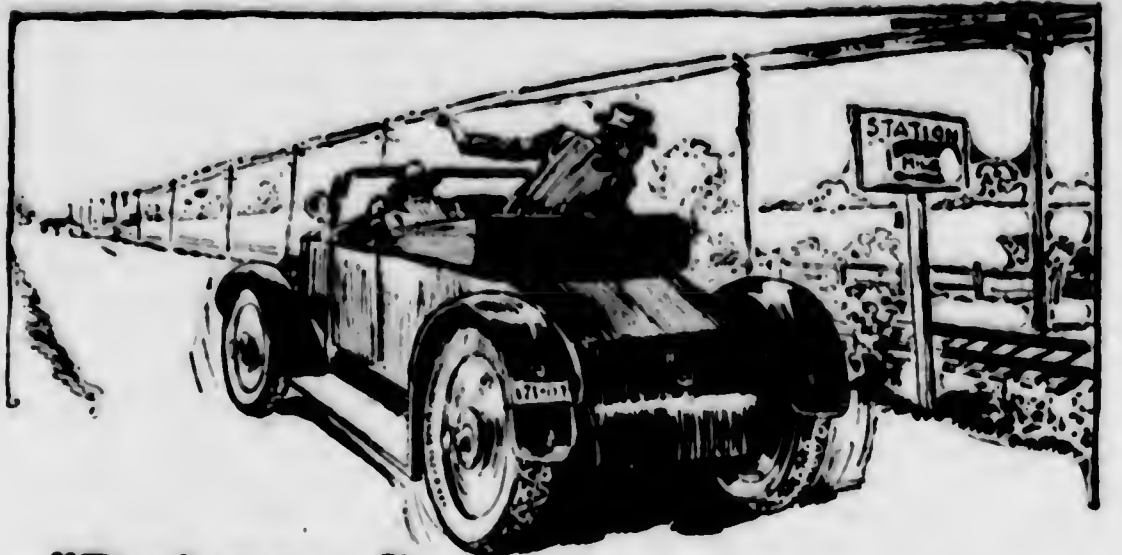

In grading potatoes too much dependence should not be put on sizing alone, say specialists of the bureau of markets, United States Department of Agriculture. A potato, for example, may be so covered with second growth knobs that it will not pass through the meshes of the grader, but it does not rightly belong in the first grade. The knobs mean much waste and require extra time in preparing the tubers for the table. Or, a potato may measure up satisfactorily to the standards of size and yet be so diseased as to be worthless.

A potato may even present a fine prize-winning appearance on the surface, and be far below grade because of injuries or disease of which there is no evidence without cutting it. Pressing injury, or hollow heart, illustrates cases of this kind. The grower should not be blamed for losses which result from these causes, but to a great extent field conditions are the primary cause of the troubles which appear when the potatoes are marketed.

POOR POTATOES CUT PROFITS

Waste of Time and Labor Results From Every Bad Specimen in Storage or Transit.

Every rotten, frozen, or undergrade potato that is loaded and every potato spoiled while in transit or in storage reduces the grower's profits and means a waste of time and labor, says the United States Department of Agriculture. It also means a waste of time and labor for every person handling it, a waste of car space, and consequently it amounts to an appreciable loss to the community as a whole. Through its markets inspection service the department is trying to eliminate this waste.

Late Planting Of Legumes Does Not Pay Tests Prove.

Planting cowpeas or soybeans in corn at the late cultivation is not a profitable practice, according to results obtained by the Kentucky Agricultural Experiment Station in tests conducted over a period of ten years. The results show that, where cowpeas or some other legume has been planted in corn at the late cultivation, where corn is grown continuously on the same ground, that the yield of corn has been increased only three bushels an acre. Members of the seed and crop department of the station attribute the failure of this method of cropping to the dry weather and the competition of the corn which prevents a satisfactory growth. Legume catch crops also show unsatisfactory growth where corn appeared in a rotation once in four years. The large number of droughts in Kentucky after the planting of a catch crop make this practice unprofitable. The only sure means of keeping up the nitrogen supply is to have a legume occupying a full year in the rotation and saving the moisture by feeding these legumes and other crops or turning the legumes under, the specialists say.

Campaign To Take Down Shaft To Join Wilkes Booth Is Begun At Birmingham By League

Birmingham, Ala.—A movement looking to the removal of a statue erected at Troy, Ala., just after the civil war to John Wilkes Booth, slayer of Abraham Lincoln, has been launched by Mrs. Cal D. Brooks, president of the Women's League of Republican Voters of Alabama.

Mrs. Brooks declares that protests against the statue have come to the league from many sections of the country and she believes the time has come when such acts as placing the shaft "will be frowned upon by all good citizens of the South regardless of party affiliation."

An injury has been done the South as a whole, she says, and a wrong impression created North, East and West. In order that there may be "one harmonious Union of interest, North, East, West, South," Mrs. Brooks has called upon all political factions of the South to join the league in plans to remove the Booth shaft.

The statue was erected by funds gathered by subscription, subscription at a time when partisanship was keen and when Booth was looked upon by some as a benefactor and hero.

The league claims that this was not with sentiment of the South at that time and that the surviving few who had a hand in the erection of the shaft will not object to its removal, a step urged by D.C. Andrews.

Lazy Babe Ruth

Another world's record was hung up by the Beowulf of the baseball diamond Babe Ruth, when he smote seven home runs in five successive days. In yesterday's game with Detroit, whose traditional ghost of heavy batsmanship must have wailed at the sight, the mighty Babe cracked a homer in the first inning. Not content with this all too commonplace exploit, up came he in the third to send another offering of Mr. Dauss, Detroit's pitcher, to the far-off fence.

An ingenious theory has arisen regarding the catapultic bat of Babe Ruth which may explain how it is possible this early in the season for a batter to pile up twenty-three home runs. It seems that Babe is a human being built on colossal proportions and that he is not overly fond of running bases at the fast and furious pace of his contemporary, Ty Cobb. To save his lumbering body the effort, therefore, he hits the ball over the fence and makes the circuit of the four bases at his leisure.

That is a satisfactory explanation as any other. The ways of laziness are indeed clever. Some there are who contend that most of the labor-saving devices that have revolutionized modern industries have sprung from the fertile brains, set in inactive bodies, of lazy men. Constructive laziness is, according to that school of thinking, a boon to humanity and a blazer of progress.

Ruth, finding base running inconvenient, devises a means of overcoming it and is hailed as the home run king of the world admired of thousands and becomes the recipient of fat pay checks at whose figures the merely industrious man gasps. —Courier-Journal.

T is characteristic of folks after they pass the allotted "thirty score years and ten," to have their days and years go on and thoughtfully live them over.

I find myself, at seventy-one, frequently drifting back a quarter of a century, when I see myself in the same position, and wondering how I could be moping and selling a vegetable compound to my friends and customers—that was then. Known as "New Medicine for Stomach, Liver and Bowel Complaints."

For many years while I was perfecting my formula I studied and investigated the laxatives and cathartics that their main fault was not that they did not act on the bowels, but that their action was too violent and that they produced a habit of dependence. I was not satisfied with which was due to the fact that they were not thorough enough in their action, some simply acting on the upper part of the colon, while others would act only on the lower or large intestine, and that they almost invariably produced a habit requiring subsequent treatment.

I believed that a preparation to produce the best effect must first tone the liver, then act on the stomach and entire alimentary system. If this was accomplished, the medicine would produce a mild, but thorough elimination of the waste without the usual sickening sensations, and make the user feel better.

After experimenting with hundreds of different compounds, I at last perfected the formula that is now known as Banner's Balm, which I truly believe goes farther and does more than any laxative on the market today. The thousands of letters from users have convinced me I was right, and that I was not only giving the best family medicine, even though he may have used it for twenty-five years, ever has

My knowledge of medicine and the results of its use in my own family and among my friends, before I ever derived it for use, caused me to have great faith in it, and I was from the very first.

And now I find myself soaring the age when I must bow in the inevitable and go to another life, my greatest pleasure is to sit each day and read the letters that each year come from people old and old-timers to it, who tell of having used Banner's Balm for ten, fifteen and twenty years, and how it has cured them and their grandchildren have been benefited by it.

It is a wonderful thought, my friends, for a man at my age to feel that aside from his own success, he has done something for his fellow-men. My greatest satisfaction, my greatest happiness today, is the knowledge that tonight more than one million people are better because of what I have done, and will be better, healthier, happier people for it. I hope you will

Good Care and Right Kind of Food Are Best Means of Preventing Underized Animals

Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.

The importance of good breeding in the growth of live stock, and especially in the prevention of runs, is illustrated by the experience of an Illinois swine grower. "I started with stock," he remarks in a letter to the United States Department of Agriculture "direct from the foundation stock of the breed, and the results were satisfactory. When I had time to read of the work of other men, the results of feed composition and experimental feed trials, I took from these experiences what I thought practical for me to follow and the results, though not exceptional have been the natural results of good blood and good feed. One of my boars, farrowed in April several years ago, weighed 165 pounds the following September. At sixteen months he weighed 900 pounds; at twenty-eight months 850 pounds, and the following fall 1,015 pounds. The boar was one in a lot of 15, as was a bunch as I ever saw. Others grow into 500 and 800 pound hogs under farmers' care."

"In addition to good lines," he adds, "care and the right kind of feed are important means of preventing undersized animals, but the most important of all is the man with the feed bucket. If it is the eye of the master that fattens his cattle. So far as rail-

Virginia Farmer Finally Convinced That Purebreds Are Most Profitable Animals

The county agent of Page county, Virginia, tried last summer to persuade a farmer in his territory to keep purchased hogs. The man was difficult to convince. At the time of the argument the boys' pig-club contest for the year was just starting. Despite the arguments which the county agent made in favor of purchased stock the man went ahead and bought four scrub pigs, saying he did not think the boys' club would do any better than those he had purchased. He bought his pigs a month after the club contest started, and gave them the best of attention. He butchered his hogs in January, this year, and the largest weighed 175 pounds gross. The prize winner in the pig club weighed 200 pounds, and was fed only a little over five months. This farmer is now trying to buy some purchased hogs, and declares his scrubs cost him more than twice the amount the meat they produced would have cost him.

Feed Daily an Average of Fifty Pounds of Silage, Some Oil Meal and Clover Hay.

One of the cheapest and best rations for fattening steers is an average daily of 50 pounds of silage, two or three pounds of oil meal and two or three pounds of clover hay. With corn as cheap as it is in most localities it is a good plan to add to this ration during the last two months of the feeding period an ever increasing amount of corn.

Lambs Thrive Better if Mother is Not Compelled to Suffer From Carrying Heavy Coat of Wool.

Practice early shearing. Sheep shorn early will thrive better and the hands will also do better if the mother is not compelled to suffer from carrying a heavy coat of wool in hot weather. There is but little gain in the weight of the wool after the weather gets warm, not enough to make it worth while to leave it on, when the comfort of the animal is considered.

Give an Abundance of Succulent Forage Supplemented With Different Kinds of Grain.

Special care should be given the fattening lands as soon as they are sown. Abundance of succulent forage supplemented with grain feeds, what can mostly be grown on the farm, with the addition of a small amount of wheat bran and oil meal, has always produced the best results.

Must Wait For Chief Justice's Post.

Harding Considers Choice, But May Defer Appointment Two Or Three Years.

Washington, June 2.—President Harding will probably name former President William Howard Taft Chief Justice of the United States Supreme Court, although the appointment may be deferred for two or three years.

Senators have informed the President that there would be much opposition to the appointment of Mr Taft at this time. This would not be manifested in the vote, which so far as the Republicans are concerned would probably be unanimously in favor of the former President. Some of the Senators have disclaimed articles written by Mr Taft and others do not approve some of his decisions on the War Labor Board.

Mr Harding is quoted as having told leaders at the White House that he intended to promote Associate Justice Day to be Chief Justice and to name George Sutherland, former Senator from Utah, Associate Justice. The arrangement was to be that Justice Day should retire in about two years, after which Mr Taft would be offered the place.

It was hinted today that Mr Taft's receiving much mention for immediate appointment, the inference being that the President is weighing the two plans.

Sprayed Garden Crops Will Not Poison Users.

"Garden truck which has been sprayed can be used without danger from poisoning in spite of the fact that many people believe such a practice to be dangerous according to H. H. Jewett, of the College of Agriculture.

"Garden foods, such as cabbage, lettuce, spinach, gooseberries and currants when sprayed with arsenicals are looked upon with doubt by many housewives," said Mr. Jewett. Experiments have shown that there is absolutely no danger in using such vegetables for foods. In these experiments cabbage was sprayed with lead arsenate at the ordinary strength and then treated to remove all the arsenic which was accurately weighed. From the results it was found that the average person would have to consume 28 heads of sprayed cabbage at one meal to cause even the first symptoms of sickness from arsenical poison.

"Although the experiment proves that sprayed garden crops are not dangerous, some care should be exercised in their use. Such sprayed crops as cabbage or lettuce should be well washed before going to the table. The same applies to green berries and currants."

How Jud Surprised the Boys

By FREDERICK CLARKE.

(Copyright, 1921, Western Newspaper Union)

The "shooting up" of Walker Gap was a sensational event in its history long remembered. It was, however, the last really characteristic occasion in the career of Judson Ransom where the somewhat pronounced misadventure of the brick border town followed their leader with old-time pride and enthusiasm. It came about when Higbee, a rival settler thirty miles distant, sent over what there was of a frontier temperance league. The act was resented at once by the Gap people. A covert insinuation was conveyed that they were within the heathen pale, and Jud and his crowd, holding high festival at the settlement bar, marched en masse to the village "hall."

They were somewhat awed when they found the visiting hyrnick band under the care and encouragement of Miss Tappan. She was the daughter of Judge Tappan of Higbee, and highly respected. Her father had made "a ten strike" two years since, but the vein was lost and he was no longer wealthy.

"I'm going to stick," announced Jud to the loyal ones. "Start the ball rolling and you'll find me pushing it."

In the midst of an address one of the misadventures broke into a wild dance, declaring he was "reformed." Then Jud gave the word. Instantly four revolvers blazed forth, filling the room with clamor and smoke.

Not one of the visiting party flinched. Miss Tappan gave out a song: "Where is My Wandering Boy Tonight?" It made Jud make. "I caused him to think of his mother."

"Shoo her up again!" he shouted, leaping upright on a bench and producing a bottle. Here all hands take a drink.

There was no shooting and no drinking. Jud had missed his footing.

"When Jud Ransom returned to consciousness the morning was over. Only the visiting crusaders were in evidence. He was lying on a bench and gentle hands were cooling his wounded head with a wet handkerchief. His eyes met those of Miss Tappan. Half sobered, as he sat up he scowled at his grave-faced nurse.

"I was thinking of your mother," almost whispered the lady. "I was wondering if she was longing to see her wandering boy tonight."

Jud broke past her as if she had applied a stinging whiplash. Mother—home—the past. As if pursued, he made for the tavern.

It was a question of varied discussion, the weeks after that, what had come over Jud Ransom. He lay in a weak, damped stage. When he got about he evaded his old comrades, did no work and wandered about in solitary places. The leader of the camp, he felt himself becoming a weakling, and one dark night Jud left the Gap—a broken man.

He got as far as Higbee. He had to keep going, nerve lost or not, he told himself. A prospecting company offered him a grubstake to try and locate new claims. Jud had been educated as a mining engineer. That had drifted him West. He took up the work offered. He turned in one or two fair prospects. One day he came back from the hills alive with suppressed excitement, ridged up the best he knew how, and went to the Tappan home.

He had tried to evade Miss Tappan since he had been located at Higbee; it attracted him up to meet her. She greeted him always with a friendly smile.

It was she who met him at the door as he asked for Judge Tappan. She looked interested as she took him to her father.

"I'm a square man, Judge," said Jud bluntly. "You know I've been locating prospects for those eastern people. Yesterday I ran across a rich one and I thought I had good news for your crowd, when I found this," and he produced a piece of ore.

"It's rich all right," observed the Judge. "Where did it come from?"

"The ravine end of your claim," replied Jud promptly. "I reckon I've found the hot vein of your little Jew-el mine."

He had, and proved it next day, and became the partner of the Judge in working it. Hope, hard work and sobriety hid wonders during the next month in bushing the nervous breakdown, and Judson Ransom came down the mountain side at the Gap one glorious morning, slinging as he went, his face radiant.

"I suppose you've heard of the wedding, boys," he said. "I've come to invite you, because I never forget old friends. We'll have a dance, but no riot. I can't fight or drink any more, but if any of you want to argue on the moral questions of the day, I'm here with the goods."

Nothing More to Add.

A witty dean was staying at the house of a friend in London whose small daughter was just beginning to try her hand at writing essays.

During his visit she began an attempt on "Man," and had got on far as "Man was made, and for some time he lived in innocence, and he—"

At this point she was called from the room, and in her absence the dean entered. Taking up the child's pen, he continued writing where she had left off:—

"—at an early stage of his existence met Eve, and she—!"

Conditions

Unspeakable.

After three years of famine and on the eve of a new harvest, North Central China again is ravaged by death, a new famine that is drying up the young plants before the eyes of a people who have eaten one meal a day of rice supplied by American for more than a year. Five million of the forty millions of people in the two north central provinces face death before August, unless more funds are hastened to them. This is the message sent to the Rev. Dr. E. C. Mullins, chairman of the China Famine Fund, Louisville, by Charles H. Crane, American Minister at Peking.

"Conditions are unspeakably awful," he writes. "May God grant that I may never have to see another famine. To see about you thousands of people with pinched faces and a look of despair, to have old men clutch you and beg for help, and little children wail out their cry for bread and to have to turn away from them—that's hell."

"Family life is being destroyed in thousands of cases where the children have been sold or the men have left home to find work. One cannot understand families until he has seen them in all their horror. The suffering among these people is more than our people at home can realize or even picture in their minds."

"With each new day there are increasing hundreds of people who reach the limit of their resources."

"Little children have long since disappeared in the worst affected famine districts. The gray days are here when whole families unable to continue the painful struggle, lie down and die. The terrible truth is that millions are perishing."

Leaders of the foreign mission boards of America, having direct missionary interests in the vast famine area, passed resolutions urging the China Famine Fund to continue its organizations and other activities.

In response to this need the China Famine Fund will sell China Life Saving Stamps, the coming week throughout Kentucky.

These little black and yellow stickers have become known throughout the world as the little stamps that have saved millions of Chinese from death by starvation. They are 3 cents denominations, denoting the amount required for enough wheat to barely sustain life of one body for a day. The slogan of the stamp sale campaign is:

"Three cents saves a life a day; 25 cents saves a life a week; $1.00 saves a life a month and $5.00 saves a life until harvest."

It all comes to this—buy a U. S. Tire anywhere in this country and you get definite, predictable value for your money no matter what weight car you drive.

For the first time he will hear some straight quality tire facts—and get the difference between chance and certainty in tire buying.

The U. S. Tires he sees in stock are fresh, live tires. They come direct to the dealer from his neighboring Factory Branch.

Decency To The Fore.

American decency may be slow to act, but it moves swiftly when it does make a start.

A case in kind is before us. The mayor of one of our great cities was elected by the better element of the voting population. Much was expected from him.

But like many another, he fell among the Philistines, and for the sake of future power he forsook the friends who elevated him, combined with another element, and plunged the city into the depths of political trickery and prodigal extravagance. The gang soon acquired full sway and swept the mayor into office again and to a more reckless squandering of the people's money.

Then decency in his party revolted, combined with the opposite party in a fifty-fifty arrangement, and buried him under the ruins of the most smashing defeat that has been recorded at an election in recent years.

The lesson is simple, but illuminating and valuable to all lovers of righteousness in municipal affairs.

Political parties and their leaders should be taught that they must nominate men who have been tried and are known to be true if they would win at an election.

The welfare of a municipality is greater than that of any party within its borders.

The prosperity of all of the people is more to be desired than that of a machine composed of politicians and their henchmen.

The survival of decency is necessary to prevent a reign of debauchery.

When officials forget their duty to the people it is time for the people to remember the duty they owe to themselves.

An equitable combination that promises beneficial results is preferable to a hidebound adherence to party that offers only profligacy, debauchery and distress.

A way has at last been found to kill the beast.

Its hide will be tanned from time to time in other communities.

Give Him A Chance.

Hundreds of thousands of foreigners have been flocking into this country since the war. Millions more will seek entrance in the years to come.

Whether or not they will become good citizens and eventually good Americans will depend as much upon us as upon them.

They come to us in comparative ignorance of American manners, customs and traditions. They will learn principally that which is taught them by others.

If they fall among the minority element that disparages law and order and good government it will not be surprising if time finds many of them allied with that class.

But if they find the kindly and paternal hand of the government outstretched to greet and guide them there is every reason to expect that they will develop into good and valuable citizens.

Some effort is being made to enlighten these immigrants upon their arrival in the United States, but it is only a beginning and the end is too quickly reached. It can hardly accomplish the full purpose for which it is designed.

A more comprehensive and detailed course of instruction in the duties of American citizenry and business activity should be provided every foreigner who lands upon our shores in future years, and not one of them should be sent out into the blue of American industry until he has acquired a clear understanding of the opportunities before him and of the duties that devolve upon him.

Good citizens are what we want, but good citizens are not made standing idly by while the untutored walk into the waiting arms of those who thrive at the expense of good society and rational government.

Give the immigrant a chance.

As The Editor Sees It.

Have you a child in your home? Naturally its daily welfare is among your first thoughts.

But daily welfare is not sufficient. There is a tomorrow—a future—that must be considered.

The child of today will not always be a child. Some day it will be a man, or a woman, carrying the burdens that maturity entails.

Children should be prepared for the tomorrow before the tomorrow is here.

The mind that knows only the things of today soon reverts to those of yesterday.

It has no future. It exists upon the present and dwells upon the past.

Its vision is limited to the things it has seen and to those that are set before it.

It is capable of functioning, but not of progressing.

It is the mind of the person who is content to take life as it comes, with little opportunity for improvement and less effort toward advancement.

The daily welfare of a child is one of great concern, but the shaping of the mind for the future is of infinitely more importance.

Unlimited sums for pleasure!

Nothing for humanity! Ingratitude for service well performed!

Thousands of rich men will pay great sums for the privilege of seeing the fight between Carpentier and Dempsey.

Hordes of people who can ill afford the price of admission will also view the battle of the pugilistic giants.

But there are thousands of others who will not see the "mill"—who could not if they would. They are men who have fought in a greater battle, with nobler impulses, and for a more worthy cause. They are the sick and the crippled veterans of the world war—young men who crossed the seas and gave of their blood and their manhood in the cause of home and country.

These helpless heroes are herded in over-crowded hospitals or farmed out to other institutions where neither the comfort or the food is what it should be.

Will these battered and emaciated service men think of the coming fight in their isolation and neglect?

They will!

They will wonder why millions of dollars can be spent on a single prize fight by men who sidestep the expenditure of a few dimes on those who fought in a nobler cause.

They have no reason to wonder.

DEMOCRATIC COMMITTEE

Replies To Judge Stapp

As a representative of the Republican County Administration, County Judge Forest Stapp, charges in the Record of June 9th, that the democratic candidates and their representatives "purely for the sake of political expediency, knowingly and wilfully misrepresented a man."

The leaders of the democracy of Garrard County have no controversy with Judge Stapp as an individual, but as a public man and the head of a republican administration they have the right to discuss him and his administration and praise what is worthy of commendation and criticize him and his administration for his and its failures. He promises in the near future to give the public facts touching his administration. To be sure this must be glad news to the public, for it is the subject of daily inquiry by most every tax payer in the county how the Judge's administration has succeeded in disposing of so large a tax fund as Garrard County is entitled to have at the present rate of taxation with such an insignificant showing that has been accomplished with it. The public waits with bated breath for the show down from Judge Stapp. But while we wait, the question may be asked with significance whether Judge Stapp is seeking for an endorsement by the people of Garrard County of his republican fiscal administration of which he is the head. All who favor another such fiscal administration for Garrard County for four years raise hands and let Judge Stapp direct you how to vote. How many hands?...We opine many will say in answer to this, that less has been done on the roads of the county for the past three and one-half years than the same number of years since the macadam roads of the county have been free to the public to travel. Less than five miles of reconstructed road in three and one-half years. We note that Judge Stapp very carefully avoided giving any explanation of why he refused to take the thousands of dollars that Garrard County had paid into the State Treasury as a State Tax Road Fund and which was due to come back to the county. We charge now that Judge Stapp will not answer that question, nor will his republican associates undertake to answer it for him because any attempt to answer would be such reasons that every tax payer, regardless of politics, in the county would condemn. It may be suggested in this connection that Mr. R. D. McMurry could find good reasons for refusing to accept an appointment as County Road engineer which he held just long enough to find the County Road Fund bag practically empty with a large surplus of road machinery and money to pay for but little work. The Judge thinks that the suggestion of "three in one" very unkind on the part of democratic candidates and he is "willing to leave it to the public."

He thinks his son, Irvine Stapp working very cheap when he gets the same salary as Harve Robinson, who is an expert in road construction, having had over ten years' experience in Garrard County. How many good republicans of Garrard County could Judge Stapp have found to have taken this good job of about four dollars a day. In this connection we note that while the Judge was discussing "Three in One" that he failed to tell his republican friends how much time he had spent and how hard he had labored to get somebody to fill that good job of oil inspector, which pays about eighteen hundred dollars a year and having failed to get any other republican to take it he finally induced his son, Barton Stapp, to accept it. We are sure that there is no other republican in the county who would have accepted that position, and it might be suggested too that if the Judge had made as much effort and spent as much time and persuasion to induce some one to accept the County Road Engineer's place, as he had done to find an oil inspector he might have found a real road engineer. The Judge on a good salary—two sons in good jobs, drawing from the county treasury, looks very much like "three in one."

A GOOD CHICKEN

It takes a good butcher to make the selections that will provide your home table with a good fowl and your mouth with a hungering appetite.

Currey & Gulley.

It was suggested what may be done for the roads in the county by future administrations, and we can join the Judge in the hope that an administration will be elected who are capable and who will do great things for us in road building and at the same time we can suggest and promise that any one that may be elected will do at least as much as has been accomplished by his administration. This is Democracy's reply to Judge Stapp. (11.)

Lancaster Wins

From Hustonville.

In a hard fought, clean played game the Lancaster town team took the Hustonville boys into camp on the local diamond last Friday afternoon by the score of 7 to 5.

The local lads started the game right by piling up three scores against the visitors in the first inning and keeping the lead throughout the entire contest.

Larky and Schooner were the batteries for the home team and Leon played their excellent game of ball not a one of the boys from Hustonville stole a base or in the last few innings did they dare to attempt a steal because they were aware of the fact that meant an out when they made such an attempt.

Kinnard played a good game at firstbase and it looked at times that it would be impossible for him to make the catches that he made, while Woods on second did not let the boys put anything over on him.

Capt. Miller on short stop and Walker on third played an errorless game of ball, they were also good at using the stick.

The fielders consisting of Joseph, Sanford, Jenkins and "Battle Ax" Cox sacked them all, one of the prettiest plays of the entire game was when the visitors had two men on bases in the ninth inning with no outs when a punch hitter came to the bat and knocked one to Cox that "scooped" good for a homer had he not made such an effort to catch same.

He at once threw the ball to Capt. Miller on second and he in turn to Walker on third making a triple play.

This game was indeed a good one and the local boys deserve credit for the honor they won.

Twenty-seven species of birds examined, twenty-five were grasshopper eaters. In nineteen of the species all of the individuals collected had given grasshoppers, place on their menu. The birds having the best records are the lark, sparrows, meadow larks, Franklin gulls, Arkansas king bird, crow, blackbird and the common bluet.

LIVE STOCK FACTS

PARASITES CAUSE BIG LOSS

Injury From Insects Is Greatest Among Lambs and Young Sheep—Ways to Prevent Diseases.

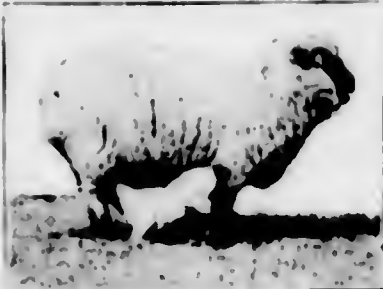

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)

Sheep probably suffer more than any other kind of live stock from parasites. They are practically immune to tuberculosis, which is one of the serious ailments of cattle and swine, and among sheep there is nothing comparable to the devastating outbreaks of cholera among swine. Sheep have comparatively few bacterial diseases. Nevertheless, there is a steady loss of sheep in all parts of the country and this loss is mostly due to parasites.

It is the sheep owner's business to prevent disease rather than to attempt to cure it after it has made its appearance. While there are special treatments for the various diseases which makes it advisable to call a competent veterinarian there are a number of ways to prevent diseases caused by parasites. Among these pasture rotation, use of forage crops feeding from racks or board floors, draining or filling swamps, and preventing wandering dogs from getting into the flock. Permanent pastures perpetuate parasites, it is stated. The eggs of internal parasites pass from the animals in the manure and thus the pastures become infested. The proper disposal of the manure will aid in preventing this.

Damage from parasites is greatest, as a rule, among lambs and young sheep. Hence, it is important to pay special attention to the care and handling of lambs and yearlings. Prompt action to ascertain the cause when sheep become unthrifty will often prevent serious loss.

Parasites of sheep are divided into two general groups, external and internal. Among the former, lice, sheep ticks, and scab mites are the most common. The application of sodium fluoride in the form of a powder rubbed into the skin will kill biting lice but not sucking lice. Both kinds of lice, sheep ticks, and scab mites are destroyed by dipping the sheep. For lice and sheep ticks a number of dips are recommended in the bulletin, including coal tar creosote, creosol, and nixolin, or nixolin and sulphur. For scab mites the official dips are lime-sulphur and nixolin-sulphur dips. Arsenical dips are not well suited to sheep dipping. All places which have been occupied by lousy sheep should be regarded as dangerous from this standpoint for a period of three weeks. If occupied by ticky sheep, as dangerous for two months; if occupied by scabby sheep, as dangerous for a month or two in the case of pastures, and a year or more in the case of buildings. Quarantine measures are essential in eradicating scab.

The most common internal parasites of sheep include tapeworms, flukes, roundworms, and a few other forms such as tanglers causing grub in the head, the tongue-worm and the one-celled protozoan. One of the most common of these is the grub, infestation with which can be largely prevented by smearing the nose of the sheep with a preparation made of equal parts of tar and grease, or tar and fish oil. Other important internal parasites discussed in the bulletin are tapeworms, the gill parasites, hydatid, liver flukes, stomach worms, nodular worms, lookworms, and lungworms. Of these, certain tapeworms are fairly common over the entire United States; one tapeworm occurs only in the West; gill is most prevalent in Montana; liver flukes are most common in the Gulf states and the Pacific Coast states; stomach worms and lungworms take a heavy toll in sheep in almost every state in the Union; and nodular worms and lookworms are common in the South and East.

The Moslems' Sacred Black Stone.
The Kaaba, or cube, the most sacred shrine of Mohammedanism, toward which Moslems turn their faces in prayer, is a small, dark, flat-roofed building in the center of the Great Mosque of Mecca, in the north-east corner of the famous "black stone." This stone is a dark oval shape, about seven inches in diameter, and probably of volcanic origin. When Mohammed returned triumphantly to Mecca, he destroyed the idols found in the Kaaba, which had been used in pagan use, but spared the "black stone," which all Moslems venerate.

Alone in the Jungle.

Mrs. Clement, an English woman who has achieved a reputation as a traveler and explorer, says: "To be alone even for a minute in the jungle is alarming, for such is the profound silence all around that one has a terrifying sense of being intimately watched by unseen things." Of the forest noises one of the most uncanny is the howling of intons. "When they are close at hand, the whole air is alive with the din, so that you cannot tell from which direction it proceeds. Every nerve in your body tingles, and there is a curious fascination in the great volume of sound."

American Legion News

John G. Emery, the new national commander of the American Legion, hails from Grand Rapids, Mich. He was born on the Fourth of July forty years ago. His election, which was by acclamation of the National Executive Committee, took place at the National headquarters at Indianapolis. At the same time Thomas J. Hennigan, of Hartford, Conn., was elected vice commander, succeeding Mr. Emery, who now fills the vacancy caused by the death of F. W. Galbraith, Jr.

Mr. Emery is a real estate operator. He has served as president of the Grand Rapids Real Estate Board and as one of the commissioners of that city. He is president of the First Division Club. His military record dates from his entrance to the Second Officers Training Camp at Fort Sheridan, Ill., August 27, 1917. He attended various schools in France and was assigned to the 18th. Infantry of the First Division. He commanded F. Company of this regiment in the Montdidier-Noyon and Aisne-Marne offensives and became a major September 1, 1918 following the St. Mihiel and Argonne offensives. He was severely wounded by shell fire October 9, and was immediately sent to the United States. He was discharged from the hospital and from the army March 31, 1919. He has been active in the American Legion affairs ever since.

Mr. Bannigan, the new vice-commander has served as adjutant of the Connecticut department of the American Legion three years. During the war he served as a captain. He is a member of the Legion's national committee on war risk insurance and compensation.

George K. Manos, proprietor of the Greek Candy Kitchen at Jasper, Ind., a member of the American Legion, humiliated Peter Sturgis a professional wrestler, known as the "masked marvel" at Jasper recently. The "masked marvel" came to town with the boast that no wrestler could "stay with him five minutes without getting pinned." Manos, who had been coached by members of his Legion post, accepted the challenge and not only remained with the "masked marvel" five minutes, but hurled his opponent over his head and floored him squarely. After the victory the "masked marvel" sent his wrestling partner to meet Manos. The Legionnaire threw him with even less difficulty.

Refusal to admit a one-legged overseas veteran to the swimming tank at a New Jersey amusement place recently aroused the indignation of a crowd of amusement-seekers, who demanded the veteran's admission. Commander E. H. DeLany, a retired naval officer, was present when the crippled soldier gruffly turned away by the ticket seller. DeLany appealed to the manager of the park and the latter explained that a clause in the insurance contract against accidents made it impossible to admit any legless or armless person to the tank. DeLany believes the insurance contracts of amusement parks should be changed to give crippled soldiers free access.

The body of William S. Milton, overseas veteran, who was accidentally shot and killed at Richmond, Va., was taken in charge by the American Legion and shipped to Caryville, Fla., for burial. The Woman's Auxiliary contributed flowers to accompany the body.

General Pershing in a recent address at a banquet in his honor at Lincoln, Neb., said that "no plan for future preparedness can be carried out without the support of the American Legion." The general subject of the toasts was "National Preparedness." Among the speakers were: Chancellor Avery of the University of Nebraska; Earl Cline, post state commander of the American Legion; Gen. Omar Bundy, commander of the Seventh Army Corps and Robert G. Simpson, department commander of the American Legion.

CHARLES ZUEBLIN TO LECTURE HERE

Eminent Publicist at Coming Redpath Chautauqua

Will Deliver One of the Great Addresses Which Have Made Him Nationally Known.

"Wiser Than Solomon" will be the lecture subject of Charles Zueblin, eminent publicist, at the coming Redpath Chautauqua.

Mr. Zueblin is a practical idealist, presenting a clear-cut, straight-from-the-shoulder message, tempered with keen humor and a most human philosophy. He is a scholar of the finest type—an earnest student of great problems who has kept in the mid-current of life and has never allowed himself to be isolated from his fellows and their problems.

Mr. Zueblin's philosophy of life is uncompromisingly democratic. He believes absolutely in the masses of the people, scornful and inarticulate, but potentially mighty. He is never negative or destructive, always positive, constructive, creative.

Mr. Zueblin speaks with electric energy, with rapid precision and with a potent power that is refreshingly vigorous and stirring.

FARMERS

Loose $1,500,000 By Poor Handling Of Eggs.

Kentucky farmers lost approximately $1,500,000 on eggs last year which spoiled or were graded below "firsts" when placed on the market, according to poultrymen from the College of Agriculture. Five factors contributed toward the loss. Those were: roosters running in the laying flock, keeping eggs in warm places, damp dirty nests leaving eggs in the nest too long and holding eggs at home too long. According to the specialists the losses can be prevented this year if farmers will keep eggs in cool places, provided one clean nest for every five hens, gather eggs twice daily, market eggs when they are fresh and kill confine or sell all roosters.

Gathering the eggs twice each day and keeping them in a cool place will prevent many of them from spoiling, according to experiments which show that more than 97 per cent of the eggs which are handled in this way grade as "firsts" when placed on the market. Gathering the eggs twice each day during the hot summer months also will tend to eliminate broken, shrunken and badly flavored eggs. If the eggs are placed in a cave care should be taken to keep them away from onions or any other object that might cause the eggs to absorb odors. They also should be placed on a table or box to allow free circulation of air about them. Eggs should be taken to market as often as possible as delay in marketing encourages deterioration.

Bower Of Beauty.

Crab Orchard Springs is a veritable bower of beauty and elegance. Old residents here say that never in their recollection did the buildings and grounds look so beautiful and attractive as they do now. The old Grove spring and the old Field spring have been remodeled and resurrected from moss and decay and are attractive cool resorts for the tired and thirsty. The lake, the swimming pool and the entire grounds have sprung Minerva-like into enchanted dells of bloom and beauty and no more attractive place can be found and our little town is justly proud of them.—Crab Orchard Correspondent to Interior Journal.
